Community Development's Response to Right-wing Nativist Populism

Following a Melbourne based 2017 forum on the topic, and a seminar at the recent World Community Development Conference (Ireland), this 3rd CD QLD seminar for 2018 will focus on what is a critical topic for our times.

Led by Peter Westoby, we will consider: Community Development's Response to Right-wing Nativist Populism

Trump, Brexit, Hanson, the rise of the 'authoritarian democracy' globally – what's going on? This seminar will explore the history of this move towards what is known as right wing populism, and unpack its key characteristics (simple answers, big men solutions, rage, anxiety etc.). Our discussion will consider how community development and place-based local practice can respond to the phenomenon trying to build a culture of democracy and social justice. Please join us for what will be a stimulating dialogue.

The seminar will include 20-30 minutes of input from Peter followed by small group discussions and plenary deliberation. We are keen to consider the practical implications of our collective analysis of this phenomenon.
